

Frequency of Revision

Formal revision of JHAs needs to be made when the means and methods for performing the work have changed significantly. Unforeseen site conditions, changes in the work area that were not covered in the original JHA and additional training requirements discovered after the work is underway are examples of causes for revising a JHA.